

February 2025

CONTINUAL
DEVELOPMENT

Welcome to the Finance Planning monthly round-up newsletter for February 2025,

To give Pete some more time focusing on his principal role keeping us all safe as Compliance Director, I have taken on the job of compiling these each month. Although as you will see in various sections below multiple people have contributed to it and will continue to do so for every edition.

Alongside the usual and important Risk, Protection, Mortgage and Performance sections we will be adding a regular Marketing section to shine a light on some of the tools available to help increase your business. Mark Ninnim will be sharing advice on areas such as social media and websites including what FPG are doing to support your business directly. This month we will also give more detail on the surveying opportunities that was discussed at the January conference and how you and your clients can begin taking advantage of the expertise of FP Surveying.

We also want to highlight some more positive personal news stories from across the network so in future editions we will include any updates you want to share with your colleagues. This could include anything along the lines of new family arrivals, personal achievements, challenges and sponsorship requests or any other good news that you would like included. If you have anything at all you would like to tell us all about over the next few months please email the details to david.riley@financeplanning.co.uk and I will make sure they are included. In the same vein we also want to highlight professional achievement and will be looking to recognise work anniversaries with FPG. Please also let me know any positive news within the industry you wanted to include such as exams you have passed or successes you have had with any lenders or providers. Finally, we also want to introduce some of the colleagues who have joined the network over the last few months, some have kindly also chosen to include a paragraph about themselves to give us all a chance to learn a bit more about them.

Not all the future editions will be as long as this one but do remember reading it counts towards your CPD requirements for the quarter so is well worth the time. If you have any feedback on what you would like to see in this newsletter going forward I would be delighted to hear it so please email anything you can think of across.

I hope you all have a great month.

David

Re-validation testing

Thank you all for completing the annual re-validation testing. In most instances, your Sales Manager will be debriefing your answers in your next 121, however, if you would prefer to discuss your answers sooner, then please let us know and one of the compliance team will debrief your answers with you over the phone.

Fiscal Probity Checks

Apologies for the delay in providing the annual Fiscal Probity form you all to complete. This will be with you all in the coming couple of days.

Debt Consolidation

We'll be providing a Compliance News on this subject in the coming weeks because we have been given lender data which shows that in many instances our clients are not clearing or reducing their debts, as per the lender application we submit. Naturally, we need to ensure that our clients are always using the additional funds borrowed for their intended purpose.

Data Protection Licenses from the ICO

We understand that the ICO will be increasing the annual fees for Advisers from £40 to £52. Currently there is a £5 discount for paying by annual DDM, and we assume this will continue meaning the fee will be £47 moving forwards. It is an annual fee that all AR Firms and all self-employed Adviser need to be paying.

FCA's Dear CEO Letter to all Mortgage Intermediary Firms

The FCA has published a Dear CEO Letter in which they set out their current and future priority areas of supervisory focus over the next two years. Unsurprisingly, the FCA state that their key focus is on embedding the Consumer Duty, although they state that if other priorities emerge in the meantime, then they will update firms.

Whilst we are already reviewing our processes and standards against the FCA's approach, we thought it prudent to share with you an overview of the FCA's letter, because this may give you some context for any policy changes we make to our advice standards over the coming months.

Quality of advice and unsuitable products

For first charge mortgages the FCA want firms to do more to ensure customers have the FCA's considered their options and provide appropriate information to assist customers to make the right decisions. The FCA expects Advisers to be more challenging of client's preferences, for instance they have concerns over the long-term affordability of mortgage products against the backdrop of interest rate rises. The FCA further asks Advisers to consider their approach to customers borrowing into retirement beyond just meeting a lender's acceptance criteria.

Less relevant to us is for second charge mortgages where the FCA have seen evidence of some firms failing to consider whether a second charge mortgage is appropriate for customers in financial difficulty including, the appropriateness of debt consolidation and a lack of consideration of costs for increasing the repayment term. (This also applies to first charge borrowing.)

In the Equity release space, the FCA have seen shortcomings in both advertising and later life advice. The regulator expects firms to be generally more challenging of client, and not just accepting their preferences. They also refer to firms having robust processes in place to identify and take account of characteristics of vulnerability.

The FCA plan to conduct thematic work over the next 2 years to see if firms are sufficiently assessing customers' needs to ensure advice is suitable and that firms are doing enough to support customers in understanding the mortgage they are sold. They will also be reviewing the effectiveness of firms' oversight of mortgage sales e.g. file checking.

High pressure selling and ancillary products

The FCA has evidenced through supervisory work that some firms have a culture driven by sales targets, with advisors financially incentivised to sell products that attract higher rates of commission or fees. The FCA expect firms to consider if the way they remunerate staff ensures good outcomes for customers. The FCA intend to review practices in this area and will take action where poor practice is identified.

Excessive fees and fair value

The FCA expect firms to conduct an assessment of the fair value of their services to assess whether their charges are fair for all customer segments including vulnerable customers. The FCA say they have seen evidence of some good practices from firms conducting such assessments including, reduced or removed charges for certain products where these were deemed too high relative to the benefits provided, or removing charges for certain groups of customers. Poor practice examples given are where firms have taken 'less considered approaches' including solely relying on benchmarking against fees charged by competitor firms.

Financial Promotions

The FCA have concerns that financial promotions may be unbalanced by promoting the benefits but not effectively communicating the risks of mortgage products, particularly so for more complex products such lifetime mortgages. The FCA expect firms to consider how they can demonstrate compliance with the 'consumer understanding' outcome, for example, through testing, monitoring and adapting communications.

The FCA state that social media is a widely used marketing channel for mortgage intermediaries and therefore expect any firms promoting in this way to consider their guidance paper (FG24/1) on financial promotions by social media.

Other priorities and expectations of firms

Appointed Representatives – Effectively managing the oversight of AR Firms, managing conflicts of interest in the AR firm, and the use of trading names when they should be AR firms.

Conditional Selling – The FCA have intelligence to suggest that some homebuyers are being pressurised into using the estate agents in house mortgage broker. The FCA expect firms to identify and manage such conflicts appropriately.

Preventing Benefit Fraud

The compliance team have recently seen some instances of potential benefit fraud where customer bank statements show receipt of funds that it appears they are not entitled to. For instance, child benefit payments where an applicant has income over £60,000, or perhaps universal credit when the level of income declared suggests this should not be payable.

As best practice, and to give yourselves comfort that this is not happening with your clients, you might want to consider obtaining a copy of the “entitlement letter” for the benefit. You could do this for all clients in receipt of benefits, whether the case affordability dictates you need that benefit income or not, although we are not currently making this process mandatory.

Preventing Conveyancing Fraud

Industry figures show that during the second half of 2024 the number of incidents of conveyancing fraud rose by 29%. One method used to commit this type of fraud occurs as a form of payment diversion when criminals will intercept email communications to divert deposit funds sent by the client to the conveyancer.

Whilst this type of fraud generally targets conveyancer firms, by increasing awareness of this type of fraud with our clients we can also help protect our customers from this happening to them. Some methods to help protect clients are:

- The use of secure communications, such as through the Acre Portal.
- Verifying payment details via a second method such as verifying over a phone call using a confirmed phone number (and not one from the email containing the payment details).
- Reviewing email addresses to confirm that they match the expected email address.
- Transferring a small amount first to confirm the transfer is successful before transferring the remainder of the funds/deposit.

Preventing Property Hijacks

Another type of property related fraud that can impact our clients is ‘property hijack’ where a property (usually unencumbered) is used as security by the fraudster impersonating the true owner of the property. While this generally targets unencumbered properties, if the fraudster is able to gain sufficient details related to the victim’s existing mortgage, they could also target properties that already have a charge registered against them, for example by way of a re-mortgage or a further advance.

The type of property targeted by this fraud can be those left empty, or those rented out. We have heard of instances where fraudsters will enter into a tenancy agreement to gain access to the property and build up a credit history linked to the property before attempting to obtain a mortgage on the property. In another instance we are aware of fraudsters obtaining the name of the property owner from the land registry and then changing their name by deed poll to the same.

The main way for our clients to protect themselves from this type of fraud is to register for the land registry's free property alert service which will generate an alert whenever a request is made to the land registry for information on that property. Here is a link which should be shared with all clients as part of your sales process

CPD Logs

Thank you for completing your 2024 CPD Logs. Your 2025 Logs have now been reset so that you can record your 2025 CPD. You can record up to 7 hours for attending our Conference in January, and you can record a minimum of 3 hours for completing the Re-validation workshops.

Fraud and SARs Reporting

Please don't forget the importance of reporting any instances where you have concerns about a client's paperwork or their plausibility. We can then review the situation and decide our next steps. Similarly, it is equally important to report those instances where you decide not to conduct business with an individual.

Proc Fee queries

Where you wish to query a proc fee payment (through Kirstin or Ash) please can you ensure that you provide a copy of the relevant mortgage offer, which should correspond with the Acre record.

A few words of wisdom from our Protection Sales Expert Matt Stephens

FPG Good News Story:

Our good news story this month comes courtesy of Trevor Farley...

"I set two of my clients up with individual LIFE and CIC policies with L&G about 8 years ago. These replaced some previous policies as the cover was better at the time however MR had been diagnosed with skin cancer a few years earlier which had been successfully treated. The newer policies covered cancer but excluded skin cancer for him. This was a great result and he was quite happy with that at the time. The cover was for the mortgage amount and the premiums were around £200 for both policies."

Fast forward 8 years and MRS has just recently been diagnosed with cancer. She claimed successfully on the CIC and the payout hit her account almost immediately. But that's not the only good news – I'm happy to report her cancer has been successfully treated at the time of writing. With the money they now have they will be paying of their mortgage later this year when the redemption penalty reduces.

She was also after some pension advice now as they have additional spare income as a result of the payout so Julie Parks is on top of that too!"

TOP 3 Protection News Stories:

Vitality – So the biggest news to come from our insurance panel this month is by far is the fact that Vitality are re-launching their benefits proposition of their "Vitality Programme" for our clients who have policies with them. Launching in Spring 2025 policy holders can expect to earn more rewards from existing and new partners by staying health conscious and taking part in the programme. I can't do all the content justice here so please check out their interactive document by following this link: <https://vitality-2.foleon.com/vitalitylaunch-2025/foleon-doc-alias/>. Our Vitality BDM Becky Gabirel will be attending our Protection Conference on 1st April to share more also. Exciting stuff!

Zurich – Are having a big push on their version of a "hand off" process they are calling "Delegated Underwriting". You know the drill with these whereby you can essentially get the clients to do their own medical questions at home in their own time by sending them a link. I've always had a love/hate relationship with these because whilst it keeps us safer in terms of safeguarding non-disclosure with the advisers involvement (us physically typing in the answers) there is a danger the clients just never get round to doing it and you end up chasing and chasing... Read your client and make a judgement based on whether you think the hand-off will be right for them or not. Hopefully by the time you're applying for protection you'll have spent enough time with them to make a good call on this!

Holloway – At the beginning of the month we had communication from Holloway about client's ability to refuse RPI increases to their policies as many times as they want if they took out an indexation option. Other insurers cap the amount of times this can be done! So you could have a situation where if for whatever reason a client is getting conscious about their premiums increasing they could essentially take a "holiday" and stop the increases until they feel ready to start them again. I can foresee this may just save a few policies from being cancelled if clients are struggling with monthly outgoings and the cost of living but still want to keep their policy going.

A reminder of the Protection Helpdesk

A reminder that our Protection Service Provider (Zenith PMS) has set up a Protection Helpdesk where we can send them our hard-to-place protection cases, for them to see if they can find you an insurer for your client. They work a bit like a mortgage packager. They will conduct some underwriting research for you, but then you need to place the case as normal. This is a free service to utilise. The Helpdesk can be contacted on protectionhelpdesk@sbg.co.uk and 0161 527 0193 (Doug Wilson) and 0161 527 0118 (Chris Broomhead).

In this mortgage update we are minimising the number of product or specific criteria changes as you can review these from the vast array of emails you receive from lenders each day.

Proc Fee Payment Route

Please do NOT select PMS when applying for a mortgage. Please always select L&G Mortgage Cub, as we always have. (For your information, PMS are our protection service provider – Zenith PMS.)

Ignite Sourcing

A reminder to please familiarise yourself with, and use, the L&G Affordability tool and the L&G Mortgage Search Criteria functions using Ignite <https://mc.legalandgeneral.com/ignite>. If you need any support, please email Toby.Miles@landg.com or 07385 037770.

L&G MMS

And if you'd rather call L&G to help with your mortgage queries, then L&G MSS can be contacted on 0345 026 0092.

Really Useful Websites

These two websites can help when looking for comparables of house prices.

<https://nethouseprices.com/>

<https://landregistry.data.gov.uk/app/ppd>

And this website can help when looking for solicitor firms being on a lender's panel.

<https://www.lenderexchange.co.uk/>

And this website for property searches and details about the title.

Accord

Accord have enhanced their £5k deposit mortgage proposition to now include flats. This product is for LTVs between 95.01% and 99% on residential house and flat purchases over £100k and up to £500k.

Barclays

Will now lend up to 100% of the discounted purchase price for Right-to-buy properties, using the equity from the discount, with no additional cash deposit required.

Nottingham

Enhancements to their affordability criteria including; accepting 100% of secondary income and accepting 100% of child maintenance income.

TSB

More clients could benefit from 5.5x income with a reduction of their minimum income requirement to £75k.

Marketing and Surveying

In this section our Marketing Director Mark Ninnim will offer some words on either upcoming updates from FPG to support your business or some advice on how you can grow yours directly. This month he talks about upcoming changes to Acre that will allow you to offer Homebuyers surveys directly through the system.

Exciting New Addition to Acre – Seamless Surveying Referrals at the Push of a Button!

We're excited to share a brand-new feature within Acre that makes referring your clients for a survey quicker and easier than ever. With just a single click, you can now refer your client directly to Acre Surveying — a new service that's actually powered by FP Surveying but with a difference.

What's the difference?

By referring via Acre, your client will receive a seamless handover from you to Acre Surveying, along with a slightly enhanced fee scale. In return, you'll benefit from a more generous case incentive of £100 per completed survey.

Where's the link?

You'll find the link conveniently in the Property section of Acre. Simply click the 'Refer' button, and Acre will automatically send your client's data through to the team at Head Office, who will take care of everything for you. No extra work, no forms to fill in, and no copying and pasting needed.

When does this start?

The website acresurveying.co.uk is live now, although it's currently still in testing. The 'Refer' button within Acre itself is ready to go and will be switched on once we're confident the API (the clever bit of tech that allows Acre to 'talk' to Acre Surveying) is working perfectly.

At the moment, we expect to go fully live by the end of March, but you'll be able to book directly online from 17th March.

What happens when you press 'Refer'?

Your client will automatically receive a clear, professional quotation and an invitation to book their survey. The email will reference that you've passed on their details because you thought they may find this service helpful — keeping everything personal and building on the trust you've already created.

From there, the Acre Surveying team (the same friendly people at FP Surveying) will answer any questions and guide your client through the booking process, just like they do now.

Unless your buyer is proceeding on a new property, one of non-standard construction, or a property older than 1850, there's a very strong argument for recommending that all buyers consider one of these reports. It's a simple way to protect your client's investment and demonstrate the value of your advice.

Prefer to stick with FP Surveying's lower prices? No problem.

If you'd like to continue offering clients the standard FP Surveying pricing, you can still use fpsurveying.co.uk directly — nothing changes there.

This is all about flexibility and choice, giving you another tool to enhance your service and earn more per case if you wish.

Any questions?

Speak to me directly on 07525 932299 or email me at mark.ninnim@financeplanning.co.uk. Alternatively, if you have any case-specific enquiries, please email the team at enquiries@fpsurveying.co.uk.

Mark Ninnim

Welcome to FPG

Our network is growing all the time and we want to start introducing the new people that join, if they wish they have also been invited to write a short biography of themselves for us to learn more about them. Here is who has joined us over the last few months.

Oscar Cornelius – Elysian Finance

I have recently moved to London to start my career with Elysian Finance, based in the SE of London. Brought in as their Protection Advisor, I have thoroughly enjoyed my first few months within the team and learning everything related to Life Insurance. There is still much more to learn but most importantly, learning the art of making everyone's coffee to preference!

Previously, I worked as a licensed Skipper on my local river in Chester, starting out as a Crew Member in summer holidays whilst studying for my Mathematics and Economics degree at Newcastle University.

In my spare time, I enjoy going to the gym and music festivals in summertime. London life has everything to offer a guy in his 20's, however I'm sure Elysian will keep me grounded and focused on my career.

Susan Gurung – Mortgage Master

Hello everyone! I'm Susan Gurung, a self-employed Mortgage adviser with Mortgage Master. You'll find me at our Aldershot branch when I'm in the office. I've spent over 18 years in customer service, including nine memorable years at Halifax Bank, where I tried my hand at just about every position. Recently, I decided to take a different path to find a better work-life balance while raising my energetic 4-year-old!

I'm passionate about visiting museums and learning about the history and art of different towns. There's something incredibly fascinating about ancient cultures that I can't get enough of! Travelling is another passion of mine; I love exploring new places, experiencing other cultures, and seeing how history has shaped them. The evolution of human nature and architecture never fails to capture my interest.

As for sports, I'm not much into them and can't keep up with football. The only team I supported was Manchester United, thanks to David Beckham and Cristiano Ronaldo! :D Music is a big part of my life, and I'm a huge fan of Good Charlotte, Avril Lavigne, Blink-182, and Westlife—an old-school vibe!

That's a bit about me—I'm excited to meet everyone soon for a lovely chat and look forward to working with you. I'm eager to learn from your experiences and contribute to our team's success.

Romi Pal

I joined Finance Planning Group in June 2024, bringing 26 years of experience in the financial industry. For 18 of those years, I worked as a financial advisor in the City and West End, followed by the last eight years specializing in mortgages. I have developed expertise in commercial lending and bridging finance, providing tailored solutions for my clients.

Over the years, I have built strong connections within the professional commercial industry, which I look forward to leveraging at Finance Planning Group.

Early in my career, I had the privilege of serving as a reserve officer in the Royal Air Force—an experience I thoroughly enjoyed and one that instilled valuable lessons I still apply today.

I began my career in marketing and sales before transitioning into financial services. I later established my own IFA business on Regent Street in London's West End, which I successfully grew and eventually sold to Bluefin/Thinc Group. Following this, I took on the role of Area Development Manager at Bluefin/AXA in the City, where I managed a team of 20 advisors. In addition, I remained an independent advisor myself, I gained invaluable experience in leadership and business development while thriving in the dynamic City environment.

My client base is predominantly in London and the Home Counties, built entirely through recommendations and referrals from like-minded, high-quality clients. I operate on a fully fee-based model, charging clients for all services provided. It has taken significant training and education to demonstrate the value of this approach, and I am proud that my clients now fully appreciate and willingly pay for the expertise and service they receive.

Beyond mortgages and financial planning, I also specialize in private medical insurance for small businesses and individuals. It is incredibly rewarding to help clients access medical care that may not be readily available through the NHS due to long waiting times. Additionally, I have broadened my knowledge in inheritance tax planning, allowing me to provide clients with a general understanding of key concepts before referring them to specialist professionals for more tailored advice.

On a personal note, I am married with two children—one at university and the other currently studying A-levels. I have a passion for tennis and traveling, both with my family and friends, and love exploring the incredible world we live in.

Romi

Chris Bowles – Mortgage Heroes

I haven't always worked in financial services. I started my working life in 2006 when I joined the military, which I thoroughly enjoyed as it involved lots of travelling. Naturally, as a recruit, you get handed newbie jobs, and mine was a critical one—cutting hair. I turned out to be pretty decent at it. Six years later, I decided to swap camouflage for clippers full-time and joined Toni & Guy.

Being the only straight person in the salon meant that, statistically, I had to find my wife there—which I did! So, I like to think my career choices were all part of a grand plan.

After years in the hair industry, I started thinking about a career that was still customer-facing but had more opportunities for growth. So, in 2019, I made the leap into financial services, first working with mortgages before moving into equity release.

I liked the idea of helping people make big financial decisions and navigate what can often feel like a daunting process. I provide whole-of-market advice in mortgages, equity release, and protection, working with clients nationwide. I conduct meetings either face-to-face, over the phone, or virtually.

Outside of work, I enjoy playing chess. I also “enjoy” supporting Chelsea (even when they make it difficult) and spending time with my whippet on walks around Sussex, who picks me up after Chelsea let me down.

Alongside everyone above we would also like to welcome.
