Mortgage & Protection

March 2025

Continual Professional Development

Welcome to the Finance Planning monthly round-up newsletter for March 2025,

I hope you all had an enjoyable and successful month. Lots of upheaval in world economic markets and depending on which articles you read will depend on whether you think they will prove a positive or negative to the UK housing market, what is clear though is that Mortgage and Protection figures remain strong and you are in a good place to either benefit from any good news or be protected from any bad. As ever we will be working hard to support you either way.

Just to start this edition with a small bit of good news worth highlighting, FPG take our environmental responsibilities seriously and have offset carbon created from our January conference. Small but important step.

I hope you all have a great April.

David

Re-validation testing

Thank you all for completing the annual re-validation testing. In most instances, your Sales Manager will be debriefing your answers in your next 121, however, if you would prefer to discuss your answers sooner, then please let us know and one of the compliance team will debrief your answers with you over the phone.

Fiscal Probity Checks

Apologies for the delay in providing the annual Fiscal Probity form you all to complete. This will be with you all in the coming couple of days.

Debt Consolidation

We'll be providing a Compliance News on this subject in the coming weeks because we have been given lender data which shows that in many instances our clients are not clearing or reducing their debts, as per the lender application we submit. Naturally, we need to ensure that our clients are always using the additional funds borrowed for their intended purpose.

Data Protection Licenses from the ICO

We understand that the ICO will be increasing the annual fees for Advisers from £40 to £52. Currently there is a £5 discount for paying by annual DDM, and we assume this will continue meaning the fee will be £47 moving forwards. It is an annual fee that all AR Firms and all self-employed Adviser need to be paying.

FCA's Dear CEO Letter to all Mortgage Intermediary Firms

The FCA has published a Dear CEO Letter in which they set out their current and future priority areas of supervisory focus over the next two years. Unsurprisingly, the FCA state that their key focus is on embedding the Consumer Duty, although they state that if other priorities emerge in the meantime, then they will update firms.

Whilst we are already reviewing our processes and standards against the FCA's approach, we thought it prudent to share with you an overview of the FCA's letter, because this may give you some context for any policy changes we make to our advice standards over the coming months.

Quality of advice and unsuitable products

For first charge mortgages the FCA want firms to do more to ensure customers have e FCA's considered their options and provide appropriate information to assist customers to make the right decisions. The FCA expects Advisers to be more challenging of client's preferences, for instance they have concerns over the long-term affordability of mortgage products against the backdrop of interest rate rises. The FCA further asks Advisers to consider their approach to customers borrowing into retirement beyond just meeting a lenders acceptance criteria.

Less relevant to us is for second charge mortgages where the FCA have seen evidence of some firms failing to consider whether a second charge mortgage is appropriate for customers in financial difficulty including, the appropriateness of debt consolidation and a lack of consideration of costs for increasing the repayment term. (This also applies to first charge borrowing.)

In the Equity release space, the FCA have seen shortcomings in both advertising and later life advice. The regulator expects firms to be generally more challenging of client, and not just accepting their preferences. They also refer to firms having robust processes in place to identify and take account of characteristics of vulnerability.

The FCA plan to conduct thematic work over the next 2 years to see if firms are sufficiently assessing customers' needs to ensure advice is suitable and that firms are doing enough to support customers in understanding the mortgage they are sold. They will also be reviewing the effectiveness of firms' oversight of mortgage sales e.g. file checking.

High pressure selling and ancillary products

The FCA has evidenced through supervisory work that some firms have a culture driven by sales targets, with advisors financially incentivised to sell products that attract higher rates of commission or fees. The FCA expect firms to consider if the way they remunerate staff ensures good outcomes for customers. The FCA intend to review practices in this area and will take action where poor practice is identified.

Excessive fees and fair value

The FCA expect firms to conduct an assessment of the fair value of their services to assess whether their charges are fair for all customer segments including vulnerable customers. The FCA say they have seen evidence of some good practices from firms conducting such assessments including, reduced or removed charges for certain products where these were deemed too high relative to the benefits provided, or removing charges for certain groups of customers. Poor practice examples given are where firms have taken 'less considered approaches' including solely relying on benchmarking against fees charged by competitor firms.

Financial Promotions

The FCA have concerns that financial promotions may be unbalanced by promoting the benefits but not effectively communicating the risks of mortgage products, particularly so for more complex products such lifetime mortgages. The FCA expect firms to consider how they can demonstrate compliance with the 'consumer understanding' outcome, for example, through testing, monitoring and adapting communications.

The FCA state that social media is a widely used marketing channel for mortgage intermediaries and therefore expect any firms promoting in this way to consider their guidance paper (FG24/1) on financial promotions by social media.

Other priorities and expectations of firms

Appointed Representatives – Effectively managing the oversight of AR Firms, managing conflicts of interest in the AR firm, and the use of trading names when they should be AR firms.

Conditional Selling – The FCA have intelligence to suggest that some homebuyers are being pressurised into using the estate agents in house mortgage broker. The FCA expect firms to identify and manage such conflicts appropriately.

Preventing Benefit Fraud

The compliance team have recently seen some instances of potential benefit fraud where customer bank statements show receipt of funds that it appears they are not entitled to. For instance, child benefit payments where an applicant has income over £60,000, or perhaps universal credit when the level of income declared suggests this should not be payable.

As best practice, and to give yourselves comfort that this is not happening with your clients, you might want to consider obtaining a copy of the “entitlement letter” for the benefit. You could do this for all clients in receipt of benefits, whether the case affordability dictates you need that benefit income or not, although we are not currently making this process mandatory.

Preventing Conveyancing Fraud

Industry figures show that during the second half of 2024 the number of incidents of conveyancing fraud rose by 29%. One method used to commit this type of fraud occurs as a form of payment diversion when criminals will intercept email communications to divert deposit funds sent by the client to the conveyancer.

Whilst this type of fraud generally targets conveyancer firms, by increasing awareness of this type of fraud with our clients we can also help protect our customers from this happening to them. Some methods to help protect clients are:

- The use of secure communications, such as through the Acre Portal.
- Verifying payment details via a second method such as verifying over a phone call using a confirmed phone number (and not one from the email containing the payment details).
- Reviewing email addresses to confirm that they match the expected email address.
- Transferring a small amount first to confirm the transfer is successful before transferring the remainder of the funds/deposit.

Preventing Property Hijacks

Another type of property related fraud that can impact our clients is ‘property hijack’ where a property (usually unencumbered) is used as security by the fraudster impersonating the true owner of the property. While this generally targets unencumbered properties, if the fraudster is able to gain sufficient details related to the victim’s existing mortgage, they could also target properties that already have a charge registered against them, for example by way of a re-mortgage or a further advance.

The type of property targeted by this fraud can be those left empty, or those rented out. We have heard of instances where fraudsters will enter into a tenancy agreement to gain access to the property and build up a credit history linked to the property before attempting to obtain a mortgage on the property. In another instance we are aware of fraudsters obtaining the name of the property owner from the land registry and then changing their name by deed poll to the same.

The main way for our clients to protect themselves from this type of fraud is to register for the land registry's free property alert service which will generate an alert whenever a request is made to the land registry for information on that property. Here is a link which should be shared with all clients as part of your sales process

<https://www.gov.uk/guidance/property-alert>

CPD Logs

Thank you for completing your 2024 CPD Logs. Your 2025 Logs have now been reset so that you can record your 2025 CPD. You can record up to 7 hours for attending our Conference in January, and you can record a minimum of 3 hours for completing the Re-validation workshops.

Fraud and SARs Reporting

Please don't forget the importance of reporting any instances where you have concerns about a client's paperwork or their plausibility. We can then review the situation and decide our next steps. Similarly, it is equally important to report those instances where you decide not to conduct business with an individual.

Proc Fee queries

Where you wish to query a proc fee payment (through Kirstin or Ash) please can you ensure that you provide a copy of the relevant mortgage offer, which should correspond with the Acre record.

A few words of wisdom from our Protection Sales Expert Matt Stephens

Our good news story this month comes courtesy of Andy Poustie...

"A while back I had arranged LIFE, CIC & FIB for a couple – I'd say it was about 10 years ago. A few years later they got into financial difficulty and ended up having to sell their property. At the time they contacted me as they were going to cancel their protection policies. I told them to keep it in place as they still had a need for it as tenants and if we ever re-applied for it again in the future then the terms may be different and more expensive. They agreed..."

About a year later they were told the horrible news from her GP that she had been diagnosed with cervical cancer. They immediately put in a claim to Legal & General which was agreed and the insurer paid out £223,000 under the critical illness policy which was a big relief amidst what was a considerably stressful time.

The payout allowed the clients to pay off their remaining short-term debt and to put down a new deposit to get back on the property ladder. When we were doing the new mortgage application I managed to get a new LIFE policy for her with Guardian! The partner still has his original policy in place because I did single-life rather than joint critical illness policies. This turned out to be a great decision at the time and a good example of where doing individual policies has benefited the clients!"

After hearing about last month's good news story, we also had another adviser let us know a recent positive result from Nationwide waiving an ERC. The client was making a capital payment due to a cancer diagnosis and subsequent protection payout, Nationwide charged the client the ERC initially however after taking a copy of the payout letter they then refunded the ERC in full.

TOP 2 (the month was a little light on Protection announcements!):

AVIVA – Big reminder from AVIVA this month that clients get access to enhanced legal services through the use of their DigiCare+ app. This includes a legal helpline, funeral support and a discount on Wills and LPOA's. A lot of insurers offer these extra benefits so its worth getting to know what some with each provider!

Vitality – Another reminder this month came in the form of a big email from Vitality talking about the "Earnings Guarantee" clients can get through their income protection policies. Essentially what this does is offer clients the ability to claim for up to £8000 is their earnings have changed at the point of claim. Vitality is a big step ahead with this and it may not be too long before other providers offer something similar. For now though – it's Vitality all the way for this!

New Guardian & The Exeter BDM

As you may already know James Bowles has left his role at Guardian to take up a new opportunity at The Exeter. Replacing James is Paul Dewick, Paul is very experienced with both Guardian and the wider protection market. He can be contacted via the following.

M: 07386 969 375

E: paul.dewick@guardianfs.co.uk

James has now started at The Exeter, here is how he can be reached.

Acre protection process

At the Protection conference Robin from Acre demonstrated upcoming improvements to the protection process within the system including easier referrals to protection advisers. Attached to the same email as this newsletter is the slides presented at the conference.

Insurer's treatment of smokers

A reminder of the Protection Helpdesk

A reminder that our Protection Service Provider (Zenith PMS) has set up a Protection Helpdesk where we can send them our hard-to-place protection cases, for them to see if they can find you an insurer for your client. They work a bit like a mortgage packager. They will conduct some underwriting research for you, but then you need to place the case as normal. This is a free service to utilise. The Helpdesk can be contacted on protectionhelpdesk@sbg.co.uk and 0161 527 0193 (Doug Wilson) and 0161 527 0118 (Chris Broomhead).

In this mortgage update we are minimising the number of product or specific criteria changes as you can review these from the vast array of emails you receive from lenders each day.

Proc Fee Payment Route

Please do NOT select PMS when applying for a mortgage. Please always select L&G Mortgage Cub, as we always have. (For your information, PMS are our protection service provider – Zenith PMS.)

HSBC

HSBC are reducing their product switch window from 180 days to 90 days. This reduction is happening incrementally, it has been reduced to 150 days now, it will reduce further to 120 days from early May and then to 90 days from early June.

Nationwide

Our BDM Debbie Carr is still unwell and off work at the moment with no confirmed return to work date yet. Whilst Debbie is on the mend she has advised to log into broker chat for confirmation of the BDM covering her on any given day.

Platinum trusted service award

Step 1

Book a free initial consultation with Johnny Lancaster today.

During this meeting we will show you that mortgages do not have to be complicated, quite the opposite.

Let's answer those questions; Can I get a mortgage? How much deposit do I need? How much can I borrow?

Step 2

Let's talk affordability and costs.

Understanding your affordability is one of the most crucial steps in finding the right mortgage. We take the time to thoroughly assess your financial situation by looking at how much you earn and spend each month. This helps us determine what you can realistically afford and gives a clear idea of the mortgage payments that would be manageable.

Once we understand your financial landscape, we work closely with you to establish the most favourable mortgage term and identify what monthly payment you feel comfortable with. This ensures that the mortgage you choose fits your lifestyle and long-term financial goals. Armed with this information, we can confidently approach our wide panel of lenders to secure the best mortgage deals that not only suit your affordability but also provide you with peace of mind throughout the life of your loan.

Even if you don't proceed beyond this point, you'll have a clear picture of your affordability and be well-positioned for viewing properties when you are ready.

Step 3

Let's go shopping!

Unlike a High Street bank, we have over 100 lenders and 1000s of different mortgage products, ensuring that we can offer a wide range of choices tailored specifically to your needs. Whether you're a first-time buyer, looking to remortgage, or exploring buy-to-let options, our extensive network means we can find the most competitive rates and terms available in the market.

Step 4

Let's get it agreed.

A mortgage Agreement In Principle (AIP) helps buyers understand how much they can borrow, giving them a clear budget for their property search. It also strengthens their position when making offers, showing sellers they are financially prepared and serious about buying.

Having an AIP speeds up the buying process and helps identify any potential issues with borrowing early on. It also provides buyers with confidence, knowing a lender is likely to support their purchase.

Many estate agents require buyers to have an Agreement in Principle, and offers with one are often taken more seriously than those without. Take advantage of this free of charge service today.

Step 5

Make your AIP into a formal offer.

Once you've found your dream property, we'll begin by reviewing the market to find the best rates available. We'll also check that your Agreement in Principle is still with the most suitable lender. If it's not, we'll simply submit a full application to the cheapest mortgage provider for your personal circumstances, ensuring you secure the most competitive product tailored to your needs.

Protection

Buying a property is a great feeling, losing one because you cannot pay, must be terrible.

Not to mention, unnecessary.

Life assurance and other forms of insurance are essential components of financial planning. Beyond life assurance, other insurances such as critical illness cover and income protection are equally important.

These policies provide financial support if you are unable to work due to serious illness or injury, ensuring that your household can maintain its standard of living. Together, they help create a comprehensive safety plan to protect you and your family from unexpected financial burdens.

Sponsorship marketing

Getting involved in your local community isn't just a feel good thing, it's a smart way to grow your business.

Supporting grassroots clubs, schools or events helps build real trust with local people. It shows that you're approachable, invested, and here for the long run.

Whether it's a small ad in a programme or a pitch-side banner, these sponsorships keep your name front of mind in the places that matter. And time and again, brokers tell us that this kind of visibility leads to genuine enquiries and long-term clients.

Wedding pull up banner

When attending a busy wedding fair, first impressions really count. While your table gives you a base, a well-designed pull-up banner is a cost-effective way to elevate your presence and make sure you stand out in a room full of suppliers.

A smart, professionally branded banner not only catches the eye but instantly communicates who you are and how you can help. In our case, it lets newly-weds know that friendly, expert mortgage advice is just a conversation away. It helps position you as approachable, trustworthy, and ready to support them on the next step of their journey—buying a home together.

Best of all, a high-quality pull-up stand is a one-time investment that delivers value at every event you attend. Combine it with a clear message and a warm smile, and you'll make a lasting impression long after the fayre is over.

Wedding fair a4 protection

While many people associate wedding fair with young couples buying their first home, the reality is often more diverse. Not everyone walking through the door is a first-time buyer. Some may already own a home, have children, or be blending families—and that brings a different set of needs, especially when it comes to financial protection and future planning.

6 ways to protect YOU & YOUR HOME

- 1. IF YOU (OR YOUR PARTNER) DIED
How would those left behind, manage financially?
LIFE ASSURANCE
Will pay out a lump sum if you or your partner should die. That sum of money could be used to pay off the mortgage. Your surviving partner and family could live in a property they own outright.
- 2. SHORT AND LONG TERM SICKNESS
How would you afford the mortgage repayments on Statutory Sick Pay?
SHORT AND LONG TERM INCOME PROTECTION
Will pay a monthly amount of money to help towards covering a loss of income should you be unable to work due to illness or an accident.
- 3. CRITICAL OR SERIOUS ILLNESS
How would you afford your mortgage repayments and bills if you were unable to work due to contracting cancer or suffering a heart attack or stroke?
CRITICAL ILLNESS COVER
Will pay out a lump sum that could be used to pay off your mortgage or make alterations to your home, or just make life a little easier for you.
- 4. LOSS OF JOB
How would you cope until you found a new one?
REDUNDANCY COVER
Will pay a monthly amount of money to cover a loss of income should you lose your job through no fault of your own.
- 5. FIRE, FLOOD OR STORM DAMAGE
How would you cover the cost of these eventualities?
BUILDINGS INSURANCE
Will pay a lump sum to cover the cost of damages to your building.
- 6. THEFT AND ACCIDENTAL DAMAGE
How would you replace your possessions?
CONTENTS INSURANCE
Will pay out a sum to help cover the cost of replacing damaged, lost or stolen items.
